“Revival blessing in the West of Ireland”

Newtownabbey Independent Christian School has republished Lord Roden’s letters reporting on the blessing of God that saw thousands of Roman Catholics saved in the mid-19th century.

This is the latest in a series of books to be republished by the school. The book consists of letters by the Earl of Roden, 1788 - 1870, written from the west of Ireland to a friend in England in September 1851 outlining the working of the Holy Spirit in Connemara and West Galway, where many thousands, both adults and children were converted to Christ and left the Church of Rome.

These letters detail the visit of Lord Roden to this area and the interviews he conducted with the converts.

The book also includes a very helpful account of the history of Ireland in the times of the revival by Mrs. Joan Parkes, the history teacher in the school, and a biographical sketch of Lord Roden by Rev. Ron Johnstone, minister of Armagh Free Presbyterian church.
